

Contributors to Volume 43, No. 1

Scott Baird is chair of the Linguistics Program at Trinity University, San Antonio, TX 78212. He is interested in the mixture of languages in South Texas and in language change and assimilation as shown on ethnic gravemarkers.

Ben G. Blount is Professor of Anthropology at the University of Georgia, Athens, GA 30602. He is interested in cross-cultural aspects of names and naming and African names and naming systems.

Wayne H. Finke is Professor of Romance Languages at Baruch College, 17 Lexington Avenue, New York, NY 10010. His onomastic interests are in Romance names and naming patterns. He is coordinating the 34th annual meeting of the Names Institute, to be held at Baruch College in early May.

Breandán S. Mac Aodha, Professor of Geography at University College, Galway, Ireland, has published extensively on Irish and Iberian place-names in such journals as Nomina and Studia Celtica. He is a frequent reviewer for Names.

Allcen Pace Nilsen is Professor of English at Arizona State University, Tempe, AZ 85287. For more than 20 years she has studied and written about sexism and English, which has led her to such gender-related areas of onomastics as the changing practices relating to married women's names and titles, names as evidence of unmarked or invisible gender, and gender differences related to eponyms.

Darrell A. Norris is Professor of Geography at the State University of New York, Geneseo, NY 14454. His research interests include the changing landscape of the American commercial highway, real estate development names and lot/garden emphasis in resale home advertising. He is currently working on a coast-to-coast survey of U.S. Highway 20.

Anna Partington is a Near and Mideast specialist with a research interest in the comparative philology of Semitic and European languages. She currently edits a bulletin which monitors political and economic developments in areas of environmental and animal welfare.

Angela G. Ray is an independent researcher and freelance editor living in Oshkosh, Wisconsin. Her interests include American and British culture of the nineteenth century and human perception of the natural world.
