

Contributors to Volume 43, No. 3

Richard Coates, Professor of Linguistics at the University of Sussex, is interested in theoretical onomastics and in placename study, especially in English placenames of the earliest period of Anglo-Saxon settlement and the relationships between early English and Celtic. He is the author of The Ancient and Modern Names of the Channel Islands (1991) and The Place-names of Hampshire (1989). He is a frequent contributor to the Journal of the English Place-Name Society and Nomina. His e-mail address is: richardc@cogs.susx.ac.uk.

During his fieldwork with the Mvskoke, John H. Moore was given the nickname Nokos-hutke 'white bear', and the titles Big Spring Mekko and Mvskokullke Etlwa Etlaketa Emafanaka, a term traditionally given to a bicultural person who advises leaders of the Creek Confederacy in their deliberations. Moore was also appointed tribal historian of the Seminole Nation of Oklahoma. He is Chair of the Department of Anthropology at the University of Florida, Gainesville, 32611. e-mail: moojohn@nervm.nerdc.ufl.edu

Thomas E. Murray, Professor of English at Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS 60554, has written numerous books and articles as aspects of language variation, sociolinguistic methodology, subcultural lexicology, etymology, and onomastics. His e-mail address is: tem@ksuvm.ksu.edu.