

Contributors to Volume 44, Number 4

Alexandra Aikhenvald, a Senior Research Fellow in the Department of Linguistics at the Australian National University, Canberra ACT 0200, Australia, is the author of grammars of Modern Hebrew and Bare, and articles on Berber languages, South American Indian languages, and linguistic typology. She is currently researching the linguistics and anthropology of Arawak languages as well as preparing a comprehensive grammar of Tariana. email: aya612@anu.edu.au

Douglas Deur is a Doctoral Fellow in the Department of Geography and Anthropology at Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge LA 70803. He is currently investigating the toponymy of the native peoples of the Northwest coast, particularly the late prehistoric Tillamook and Kwakiutl. His chapter, 'Colonial Contexts, Indigenous Identities, and the Hybridization of Kwakwaka'wakw Cultural Landscapes' will appear in Cultural Geographies of the American Indians. email: ddeur@unix1.sncc.lsu.edu

James Kari is Professor of Linguistics at the University of Alaska's Native Language Center, PO Box 757680, Fairbanks AK 99775-7680. He is the author of Ahtna Athabaskan Dictionary and numerous other publications dealing with Alaskan Athabaskan languages and prehistory. email: ffjmk@aurora.alaska.edu

Lewis L. McArthur, 4154 SW Tualatin Avenue, Portland OR 97201-1576, has long been interested in geographic names. He is the compiler of the 4th, 5th and 6th editions of Oregon Geographic Names, a past president of the American Name Society and a 35-year member of the Oregon Geographic Names Board. He is currently researching the history of Oregon names, maintaining and expanding the Oregon geographic names file, and consulting on historic industrial architecture.

Robert A. Rundstrom is a cultural geographer in the Department of Geography, University of Oklahoma, Norman OK 73019. His major research interests include Inuit and American Indian geographies, and expressions of ethnicity and ethnic relations in the landscape. A recent article, 'Mapping the Inuit Ecumene of Arctic Canada', appeared in Geographical Snapshots of North America. email: rrundstrom@coga.gcn.uoknor.edu