

Contributors to Volume 45, Number 3

Thomas E. Murray, Professor of English at Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS 66506, is the author of numerous essays on aspects of American English, sociolinguistics, onomastics and pedagogy. Recent publications include Under Cover of Law: More on the Legality of Surreptitious Recording (Publication of the American Dialect Society Number 79) and (with Timothy C. Frazer and Beth Lee Simon) "Need + Past Participle in American English," which appeared in American Speech for Fall of 1996. He is also a member of the Editorial Board of Names. email: tem@ksuvm.ksu.edu

Laurel Willingham-McLain taught at the University of Lille, France, from 1991-1993, where her research on given names and naming laws provided the information for both her dissertation and this article. She taught French language and culture at Indiana University and Carnegie Mellon University. She is currently Faculty Development Specialist at the Center for Instructional Development & Distance Education at the University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, PA 15260. email: cidde+@pitt.edu