

Contributors to Volume 50, Number 4

Douglas Galbi is a senior economist at the Federal Communications Commission. He has worked at the FCC for 7 years on a range of international and domestic issues. His public work (see www.galbithink.org) includes papers on network interconnection, bandwidth, competition and industry structure, and information economics. He received a B.S. in electrical engineering from Princeton University, an M.Phil. in economics from Oxford University, and a Ph.D. in economics from MIT.

Thomas E. Murray, Professor of English at Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS 66506, teaches courses in linguistics and the English language, and does research in the areas of American English, language variation, and onomastics. tem@ksu.edu

Wilbur Zelinsky, Professor Emeritus of Geography at Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA 16802, specializes in the cultural and social geography of North America. Major published works include The Cultural Geography of the United States (1973, 1992), Exploring the Beloved Country (1994), and The Enigma of Ethnicity: Another American Dilemma (2001). His work of onomastic interest has included studies of American cemetery, church, and nationalistic toponyms, personal names, and generic terms in place names.