

Contributors to Volume 55, Number 2

Kenneth Zuercher is a Ph.D. student with the Department of Linguistics & TESOL at the University of Texas at Arlington. In addition to general linguistics, his research interests include sociolinguistics, and Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages. He has a particular interest in bilingualism in the Republic of Azerbaijan, where he did research in 2002 and 2003 under a Fulbright Student Grant.

Anthony K. Webster is an assistant professor of linguistic anthropology at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale. Department of Anthropology, Mail Code 4502, Carbondale, IL 62901. His interests include Southern Athabaskan ethnohistory of communication, Navajo poetics and poetry, the felt connections that accrue to language forms (such as names), and the relationship between individuals and their environment. His work on Navajo and Apachean poetics has been published in Anthropological Linguistics, Pragmatics, American Indian Culture and Research Journal, Studies in American Indian Literature, Southwest Journal of Linguistics, and Oral Tradition. Forthcoming work on Plains Apache warpath vocabulary and Navajo poetics will appear in International Journal of American Linguistics, Language in Society, and Journal of American Folklore.

Sarah Pinchoff is a 2007 Phi Beta Kappa graduate of SUNY Geneseo with a double major in English and Music.

Thomas A. Greenfield is professor of English and American Studies at SUNY Geneseo. His books include Work and the Work Ethic in American Drama, 1920-1970 (Missouri) and Radio (Greenwood). He is currently editing a major reference book for Greenwood Press on Broadway and American culture.

Jay H. Bernstein is Assistant Professor and Reader Services Librarian at Kingsborough Community College – CUNY, 2001 Oriental Boulevard, Brooklyn, NY, 11235, USA. He holds a Ph.D. in anthropology from the University of California at Berkeley and is the author of Spirits Captured in Stone: Shamanism and Traditional Medicine Among the Taman of Borneo (Lynne Rienner, 1997). His article on a wide range of subjects have appeared in American Anthropologist, Bijdragen tot de Taal-, Land- en Volkenkunde, Brunei Museum Journal, Journal of Ethnobiology, Philippine Quarterly of Culture & Society, and most recently Library Resources & Technical Services. His current research concerns demographic considerations in measuring author impact and insights from combining the disciplinary perspectives of anthropology and library and information science.