

Notes on Contributors

ROBERT I. ALOTTA has been employed in public relations, has been active in promotional work in the Philadelphia area, about which he has written extensively both in historical material and in onomastics, but finally saw where his talents lay. After obtaining a doctorate in history, he accepted a teaching position in Kirkhof College, Michigan. He also serves as Membership Chairman for the American Name Society. FRANK R. ARDOLINO teaches at the University of Hawaii at Manoa and has published articles on Elizabethan literature. HERBERT BARRY III and AYLENE S. HARPER teach in the School of Pharmacy at the University of Pittsburgh. Their computer analyses of names are certain to have a great influence on the study of the psychology of naming. M. J. HANAK teaches at East Texas State University and regularly contributes to the study of literary onomastics. KELSIE B. HARDER has served in offices of the American Name Society since 1960. His earlier study of Dickens was published in Names (1959). R. R. MEHROTA teaches English at Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi, India. This is his first appearance in Names but surely not his last. He is collecting articles for an issue on names in India. H. F. RAUP, eminent geographer and early contributor to Names, has retired from teaching at Kent State University but has not retired from scholarly activity. ROBERT M. RENNICK has contributed outstanding articles to Names. He is especially remembered for his articles on Hitler, name changing, and "obscene names," the latter the most often requested for reprinting elsewhere. His book on place names in Kentucky is in press. L. D. RUST is Associate Professor of Psychology at the State University College at Potsdam. His research on the derivation of James has reached the proportions of a monograph. He will welcome comments, suggestions, and directions, as well as sources, on the name that he has been researching for several years.
